Dublin
South West

Pat RABBITTE

Pat Rabbitte has a consistent record of honest, dedicated hard work as a public representative for the people of Dublin South West. Acknowledged as an able parliamentarian, he has managed to combine the roles of national legislator with local work for the people.

He has always been available to constituents and his record in Dáil Éireann speaks for itself. He is a former Leader of the Labour Party and has been spokesperson for the Party in most areas of public policy. He is currently the Party's Spokesperson on Justice.

A former Minister for Commerce, Science and Technology he published the country's first White Paper on Innovation and made new law to expand the Credit Union movement. He established the National Drugs Strategy including the Local Drugs Task Forces.

One Ireland
Jobs Reform Fairness

Eamon GILMORE

I have one driving ambition in politics – to create an economy and a society that is fair, prosperous and sustainable.

The Labour Party is putting forward a new vision for Ireland. Our focus is on Jobs, Reform and Fairness.

I am confident that with strong leadership and innovative policies we can rebuild our economy. What's more we can build a better country – a country that cherishes all children equally, a country that values the contribution of the elderly, a country where family and community are given priority.

This is the most important election for a generation. You and your family have a vital decision to make.

Together we can get Ireland back to work. Together we can build a fair society. Now is the time to take our future into our hands.

I'm asking you to vote for your Labour team
- Ní neart go cur le chéile

Eamon Gilmore, TD,
Leader of the Labour Party
