THANK YOU FOR THE MUSIC

Whenever I think of Joyce O'Hara, I think of music, of singing and dancing, and of many happy memories.

I first met her shortly after she came to live in the Knocklyon area with her husband, Aidan, and their family. In those, what now seem far off days, we used to have all sorts of 'do's' and 'little evenings' as a kind of exercise for getting to know each other. It was on one such occasion that we gathered in the home of a mutual friend and after supper, we sat around the fire and talked. Later on, to the soft strumming of the guitar, Joyce and Aidan began to sing. I recall the ease with which she gently persuaded us to join in the singing. Since that night, this attractive, talented woman has brought countless hours of happiness to many people through the medium of music and song.

She was born in Dundas, Ontario, in Canada, the youngest of nine children, and on leaving school, qualified as a Primary Teacher. From that moment to the present day, she has been involved in the teaching of music to children and adults. In Canada too, fate stepped in when Joyce, a staunch Catholic, applied to become a Voluntary Teacher with the Oblate Fathers, in the Northern Territory of British Columbia. It was the time when the Canadian Government would not fund Catholic schools, and the Bishop of the Diocese (Bishop O'Grady) sought English speaking volunteers for a two year mission of teaching. No salary was offered, but Room and Board were supplied. It was there that Joyce met Aidan, a volunteer from Ireland. Love blossomed, and they were married in Dundas in 1965. In 1968, they came to Ireland from Canada for a brief period, before settling here permanently with their four children. That was twelve years ago.

Through the years since then, she has given her services tirelessly and wholeheartedly to our community, whenever the occasion arose. In fact, the familiar sight of Joyce and her guitar became part of the Knocklyon landscape. She sang and played at numerous concerts, parties, the Annual Singalong at the bonfire during Family Week, where she strummed away while everyone sang their hearts out and often danced. These entertainments did not end locally. Indeed, until the Reconciliation Centre was closed a couple of years ago, she and Bernie Hynes used to drive down to Glencree every Sunday, to play and sing for this worthy cause

For some time now, she has been teaching music at St. Nicholas Montessori School, Dun Laoghaire, which caters for boys and girls between the ages of 3 and 12. She loves the work and finds the children most receptive. Even the youngest are taught very early to recognise the sound and visual appearance of the various musical instruments of an orchestra. She also uses her own tapes in the classroom. These are part of a series of tapes, written, sung and published by Joyce, which are widely used in Primary schools throughout the country. Action Songs - Christmas Songs -Irish Songs - even songs about Multiplication, Addition, Subtraction and Division - make learning a happy experience. At this time of year, like most schools, she is busy preparing for the Christmas Concert, a big event in the life of every child.

Today, despite her commitments, Joyce still manages to do the weekly Church collection in her area. She continues to man the 'Nearly New' stall at the Annual Christmas Fair, teaches children and adults to sing and play the guitar, and in her spare time, attends weekly classes to learn Step Dancing. She is also a member of the Firhouse Singers, a 40-strong secular singing group, who embrace a wide variety of choral entertainment, such as 4 part singing, songs from musicals, Barber Shop Quartets, and even songs like "Yesterday" of Beatles fame. This varied menu of music is presented in their many concerts.

One never ceases to be amazed at the energy, vitality and dedication of this woman. There is absolutely no doubt that Music is her life, and she has shared it unselfishly with hundreds of people through the years. I think many would join with me as a tribute to all her work, if-I quote a few lines from an old Abba song, which I think, speaks for itself.

> Who can live without it, I ask in all honesty? What would life be? Without a song, or a dance, what are we? So, I say, thank you for the Music, For giving it to me "

KNOCKLYON YOUTH CLUB

Enjoying the Youth Club Hallowe'en Disco on 26th Oct.

This year, the youth club is joining forces with the Brownies and sharing a stall at the Christmas Fair. Goodies on sale will include Christmas Wreaths, Christmas Logs and thread pictures. Fionnghuala Curry, Theresa Hogan, and the band of dedicated helpers are currently working on a patchwork quilt which will be raffled at the Fair.

Our Christmas Disco will be held on Saturday 15th December in the Centre, Juniors 7-9 p.m., Seniors 9-11 p.m.

We regret that we cannot accept any new members into the Junior Club, because of capacity numbers, and though it shows that we have a thriving Club, it still does not make the decision any more palatable. As I say, the Club is all systems go, with competitions in football, basketball, badminton and table tennis. The fantasy role playing group continues to have great interest from twenty members, ranging in age from 11-15 years. Badminton coaching still continues under the guidance of Margaret Ryan, and Gillian Keenan reports large numbers (40+) attending her jazz dancing class.

Many of you reading this newsletter are young — alive, alert and intelligent — part of a young generation which is changing the world.

There is one aspect of life which seems to be a "no go" area for you — almost every other facet of human endeavour has your attention and the sharp edge of your intelligence. That area is, of course, religion. In it, you generally either follow sheepishly, or you don't participate with any real enthusiasm.

Why is this? Is it because the image of God you have is off-putting or are you afraid that active participation in religion might limit your freedom?

Starting this month, the Newsletter will try to get you thinking about God — but we need your response, your comments, and even your criticism.

Do you find Mass boring? It's a common complaint of young people. Perhaps the following illustration may help.

Gary is to meet Anne outside News Extra on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. He gets involved with "Top of the Pops" and forgets. Anne is understandably annoyed.

Next day, Gary remembers, feels guilty and wants to make up. He buys a box of chocolates and goes to meet Anne. He apologises, she gives him a lecture. He produces the chocolates and when she accepts, they make up and share the chocolates.

Can you see any connection between this rather trivial incident and the Mass? We have all offended God, so at the start of Mass, we confess our sinfulness, God in the readings tells us how we are to behave. We then offer the bread and wine at the Offertory. Like the chocolates, these are of no great value, but because they represent us and because at the Consecration they become the Body and Blood of Jesus Christ as offered at Calvary, they are of infinite value in restoring us to God's friendship. Finally, at the Communion, we share these gifts.

Seen like this, the Mass is an activity — we go to God to confess our faults — to offer and to receive. It will not then be of central importance if the sermon is too long, or the music isn't to our taste. Of course, there's far more to the Mass than this, but a real awareness of what we are doing, can give our attendance a sense of purpose, and may eventually lead us to go to Mass not because we have to, but because we want to.

CRAFTS FOR CHRISTMAS

Recently I spent a morning at the Marlay Craft Courtyard, and after being greeted by the peacocks and pigeons I spoke to some of the people involved in producing the beautiful works on display. Space allows only a brief description of each; most of which are open seven days a week.

MARLAY PARK POTTERY is run by Frances Desmond, and has an extensive range of handcrafted ceramic pieces in stock. The lamps and candleholders come in various shapes and sizes, and there is a fine selection of jewellery. A novel idea which caught my eye is "The birth tile" made to order, beautifully painted and giving details of the new born babe. For any budding potters Frances gives classes for adults on Thursdays and Fridays and for children on Saturdays.

THE LOGBOX COLLECTION has a whole array of goods hand-crafted in natural woods from the locality. The collection, owned by Muhammad and Sakina Meddings, includes Chests of Drawers, Trinket Boxes, Jewellery and Buttons. Their work has been ex-ported to Japan, America and Holland. A large selection of notepaper and cards printed on recycled paper are also available here.

At COTTAGE COPPERCRAFT there are a number of beaten copper wall plaques with designs from manuscripts and carved stone of ancient Ireland. The Initials from the Book of Kells in etched copper create an immediate appeal to those who value the tradition of early Irish culture. Additional crafts here include Pewter earrings and pendants, and a lovely idea for children are the handpainted names (made to order) on wooden plaques.

ARTIST/ILLUSTRATOR: Dermot MacGowan has a permanent exhibition of his watercolours and drawings at his studio. He has a great interest in old Dublin and he specialises in Sepia prints of Dublin and West of Ireland scenes which he sketches on location. During our chat he told me he got his first commissioned work years ago when Fr. Weakliam asked him to sketch all the Carmelite houses in Ireland. During that time he was given the Provincial's room in Kinsale for the night! Dermot has 35 years experience of Child Portraiture, and if you have a half an hour and £10 to spend you can come away with a lovely pencil portrait of your child.

BATIKS: Trisha Curran specialises in Batiks which is an ancient method of putting a design on cloth using hot wax and cold dyes. The fabric is then used for cushions, lampshades, wall hangings, and can also be framed as pictures. This is a unique skill and as each item is individually made no two pieces are exactly alike. Trisha also works with paper which she turns into greetings cards.

HARLEQUIN CRAFTS: The magnificent pictures carved in leather are done by Dave Byrne. I watched him at work and was impressed with the precision and patience required to produce these attractive works. Dave has gone to Africa for the winter but you can still view and buy his pictures. No doubt, on his return he will have fresh ideas for more cervines. ideas for more carvings.

METAL ART DESIGN: Vincent O'Hara has a large selection of METAL ART DESIGN: Vincent O'Hara has a large selection of brass works at his studio. Most of his designs are used in commercial business such as hotels, bars and restaurants. However, he is happy to serve the individual customer, and for the home he can supply wall hangings, stair rods, fenders, cooker hoods, name plates, canoples etc.

FAILTE CRYSTAL/EAMON GLASS: All the glasses are manufactured in their factory at Whitechurch Road and are displayed in the large showroom at the Courtyard. There is a huge variety of crystal to choose from and you can build up a collection by buying individual glasses for as little as £1. Many sets are in lovely presentations ideas for all the control of the contr tation boxes and they have some unique ideas for gifts.

DUBLIN DESIGN STUDIO: John McKenna's sculptures are in cold DUBLIN DESIGN STUDIO: John McKenna's sculptures are in cold cast and solid bronze and his studio has a huge variety of works to suit all tastes. His customers come from all over the world, and among the holders of his famous Irish Wolfhound are Frank Sinatra, Mikhail Gorbachev and Ronald Reagan. However, John would like more local people to appreciate and buy his creations. His commissions include trophies for Golf Championships, and I know he has raised thousands of pounds for various charities by donating his works for auction. Lamps are a speciality with him and for Christ-mas a popular piece is "The Family". I couldn't resist the temptation to order one for myself, and I look forward to being the owner of a John McKenna original.

COFFEE SHOP: I enjoyed a cup of freshly brewed coffee in the friendly coffee shop where there was a further assortment of crafts on display and for sale. As I left behind the charm and beauty of the Courtyard and the people I met, the words "A thing of beauty is a joy for ever" were ringing through my head. Why not pay a visit to the Centre and see for yourself the works of art that come from the hands and the hearts of their makers.

BALLYBODEN ST. ENDAS GAA AND CAMOGIE CLUB

New Dressing Rooms:

Four new dressing rooms should be available early in 1991 at our club on the Firhouse Road as announced by Club Chairman at the recent AGM. The additional facilities are badly needed to cater for the huge numbers involved in over fifty football, hurling and camogie teams. The Club had a successful year, the highlight being the capture of the Dublin County Minor Football Championship for the first time.

First Senior Football Cup Success:

Another first was the victory of the Senior Football side in the St. Vincent de Paul Cup against Ballymun Kickhams. A Paul Stafford point from a sideline a minute from time claimed the title. The manof-the-match award was presented to corner back, Gay O'Brien who was superb. Others to shine were Padraig Monaghan, Frank Rafferty, Philip Wardick and Ken Murray.

Dubs Stars

Club members Brian Kelleher and David Kane both showed encouraging form in their recent debut matches in Nowlan Park and Parnell Park, respectively. Ben Molloy and Paul Stafford recently had trials for the Dublin Senior Football panel.

Juvenile Affairs

Activity on the Juvenile front continues each week-end. Greg Heraty's Under 15 Football side has made it to the Quarter-Final of the Championship. The Under 14 side managed by Pat Walsh who won the Special Leinster Football Competition during the Summer, remain unbeaten in their League as does the Under 13 side of Charlie Cronin. Jim Goodall has no complaint with his Under 12A's who are on top of the League table.

On the hurling front, the Under 16 side, managed by Denis Ryan and John Keating have emerged on top in all their matches. Both the Under 12 sides managed by Malachy Buckeridge and Tom Durkin have 100% records.

The Camogie Section is as usual brimful with success and in the next issue, an update on the situation will be given.

In coming issues, I hope to bring readers up to date on the many happenings in our club and the active participation played by so many from the Knocklyon Parish and surrounding areas.

SENIOR SCHOOL NEWS

Sports:

As we head towards the Winter recess a "welf done" is extended to all the boys and girls who participated in the sports activities over the last few months. In excess of three hundred and fifty pupils have participated in the various internal school leagues in hurling and camogie or have been involved with the school teams in Senior and Junior Gaelic football and Girls Gaelic Football. As all these events are held after normal school hours a special thank you is extended to all those teachers who give of their time so generously on a voluntary basis. The participation rate of girls in both camogie and Gaelic football has increased dramatically over the last couple of years and their enthusiasm and interest is first rate. Parental support is a vital aspect of our activities. Those who make themselves available to transport players to matches are very much appreciated. The recent cake sale in aid of the Sports Fund realised the magnificent sum of £710 — a strong indication of your support. Gura fada buan e.

Cura rada bar

Senior Football:
The Senior footballers were unsuccessful in their Div. 1 semi-final against S.F.X. Blanchardstown despite their hard work. A strong S.F.X. side based their victory on a number of well taken first half goals. A spirited second half display by Knocklyon was not enough to peg back the winners.

Camogie:

There has been great enthusiasm this term in camogie and some great hurlers have come to the fore! The girls have taken a great interest in the school leagues which have just come to an end. "Leitrim" won well and great performances were given by the team. Well done to all the girls. We are entering two teams this year in the league so keep practising during the winter, girls, if you want to make the teams.

Fourth Class Hurling League:

The concluding stages of the league approach with the "Cats" and "Dubs" leading the pack. The skills, allied with the commitment of many of the boys have provided great highlights. Results of the semi-finals and final will be published in the next issue.

Third Class Camogie and Hurling:

The new school year saw over 120 boys and girls take up hurling and camogie in third class. While enthusiasm was the main ingredient in early sessions it is now being linked to a good grasp of the skills of the game. Thanks to the interest of their parents they are well equipped with hurleys and helmets and while there are not great feats to be reported as of yet, many of the players are showing good interest and potential. To all the boys and girls involved — keep up the effort! More anon.

JUNIOR SCHOOL NEWS

Concert time for the Juniors is imminent!!! We will proudly present "TOPS OF THE TOTS" for your enjoyment. Tickets will be issued shortly through the class teacher.

While we do not regard the concert as a profit-making exercise, you will, nevertheless, be asked to pay a nominal sum for the tickets. There will be a need to limit the numbers admitted to the hall each evening and tickets will be distributed accordingly.

You will notice a major refurbishing programme going on in the school at the moment — painting, carpeting and decorating. This is part of the continuing effort, to maintain the highest possible standards — ensuring a clean and proper educational environment for your children.

Any monies raised during this school year will help towards defraying the huge expense involved.

Many thanks for your continued support and generosity.

Junior School Staff

The Junior School is in full swing with sports activities right now. Mrs. Mullan and Miss Mullany are coaching the budding basketball bouncers in 1st class and the hall is resounding with the rebounding. 120 of the second class children are involved in an indoor soccer league and Jane O'Neill's Simpsons' team and Conal Keaney's Villa squad are amongst the early leaders.

Some members of the Council have organised a Youth Mass

The Community Council Reports - Once again, our meetings are dominated by discussions on planning proposals for our area. Two recent planning applications were forced through Dublin County Council, using the much abused Section 4 motion. The proposals, if successful, for we appealed against them, will add almost 380 houses to the Scholarstown Road. The applications are on behalf of Maplewood Homes and Ballymore Homes. It was particularly infuriating to see Councillors force these Section 4 motions through, one month before they were due to introduce an Action Plan for Knocklyon. Residents should note that these housing applications make no provision for "Class One" open green space, and we are fast running out of green space for Knocklyon. One major difficulty facing our fast growing community is communications, most residents are well settled before they have the chance to look around and see what is happening to their newly acquired neighbourhood.

that takes place on the first Sunday of each month in the Parish Centre. While attendance at this Mass is small, nevertheless, the organisers feel that it is very worthwhile.

Sr. Therese Carmel gave a very full and informative report on the Active Retirement Group.

BALLYCULLEN ROAD

Coming under the general heading of Pastoral Care, a number of programmes were set in motion in the Parish. A pre-baptism catechesis group were trained and they visit the parents of children for baptism prior to the celebration of the sacrament and explain to them all about the sacrament. The Advent and Lent Parish programmes have taken place in the parish for the last two years. These programmes are prayerful preparation for Christmas and Easter.

How many of you know where Ballycullen Farm is? Well, this cowspeckled farm is the North Western Corner of the Knocklyon Parish boundary, at the junction of Ballycullen Road and Oldcourt Road. The Ballycullen Road itself was built by Lundy Foot in the early 19th Century as a carriageway to his home at Orlagh House (now the Augustinian Priory). It is on this farmland that the IDA and Dublin County Council are proposing to construct an industrial estate which will eventually absorb around 220 acres. Their rationale for the proposal - that the land will have excellent access to the Southern Cross Motorway! By such standards is our community carved up. The consequences of such a development within Knocklyon could be disastrous. Apart from the environmental impact, which would be considerable, residents would have little or no control over the type of industry which could eventually set up on such an estate. Is this the type of development you want for Knocklyon? We have had a joint meeting with Firhouse Community Council to protest at this proposal and will shortly announce a petition against the proposed development. An action group has been established and our campaign will begin shortly. It is more important now than ever that residents' associations become active and affiliate to the Community Council. Knocklyon's future rests in your hands.

The Diocesan Eucharistic Renewal Programme took place in the parish on two occasions and it concluded with a Passover meal. After Easter, the programme took place in four homes and approximately 30 people participated. Last November, young adults were trained as Faith Friends to accompany some of the children for Confirmation. It is hoped to expand this to all the classes for Confirmation in 1991.

The Finance Committee were responsible for organising the Parish Draw and another committee were responsible for the Christmas Fair.

The Communications Committee of the Pastoral Council joined with the Community Council in organising and conducting the parish survey. They also initiated the services calendar that was delivered to each home in the parish.

At the end of April, the Council attended a seminar in Gort Muire conducted by Fr. Chris O'Donnell, O. Carm. The seminar helped the council to focus in on identifying parish needs, recognising the gifts and talents of people and promoting encouragement. The Council will continue with the findings of the seminar during the coming year and hope to encourage growth in all the activities of the parish.

This is something we welcome, however, we are dismayed at the Bord's suggestion that more mature estates "should be able to afford connection fees of between £500-£800 per house in order to link up to the Gas mains". Ironically, these pipes, in many cases, run right through our "mature estates" en route to the new housing developments. We do not agree that such levies should be placed on one section of our community for what, after all, is a national resource.

Carla Van der Kamp (7), whose parents are members of the Dutch Society of Ireland, was chosen to present Queen Beatrix of the Netherlands with a bouquet of flowers on the Queen's recent State Visit to Ireland. Queen Beatrix hosted a reception at the RHK to meet the Dutch Community.
