Dear Voter,

The Presidential election is about choosing someone with the ability and experience to represent Ireland at home and abroad.

It is also about our identity as a people and our place in the world.

The vision I offer is of an inclusive and creative Ireland where everyone participates and is treated with respect.

I have remained true to my beliefs throughout my life and have been a progressive voice for social justice, women's rights and equality.

As Minister, I established TG4 and helped turn film into a thriving industry. As President, I would continue to combine vision with practical initiative.

I have been proud to represent Ireland in culture, diplomacy and peace-building. As President, I would strengthen all strands of our international reputation.

Ireland is full of potential. Working together we can shape a real republic. If elected, I will dedicate head and heart to the service of our country.

I ask you for your number one vote on October 27th.

I will be a President for all the people.
